Transaction costs are a necessary cost in administering the financial product and impacts the financial product returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of financial product, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Portfolio manager's comment

The US government shutdown came to an end in late January while further tariffs on Chinese imports were delayed. This together with a dovish and "patient" Fed saw equities continue to climb for the second straight month. The MSCI World Index gained 3% for the month, while the S&P500 edged slightly higher at 3.21%. Emerging markets lagged developed markets overall despite the strong gains in China. The ALSI gained 3.41% with resources and industrials making the largest impact at 9% and 3,5% respectively. The weaker rand contributed to resources outperforming the other sectors.

Tito Mboweni delivered a pragmatic budget speech that highlighted the dire state of SOE Eskom. This together with other economic factors will be closely monitored by Moody's for potential future downgrades of SA sovereign debt.
