The fund performance is calculated on a total return basis, net of all fees and in US dollar terms. NAV to NAV figures have been used for the performance calculations. * Please refer to the fund supplement and scheme particulars for a detailed description of fees and fund facts.

 The Total Expense Ratios (TERs) are the percentages of the net asset value of the class of the Financial Product incurred as expenses relating to the administration of the Financial Product. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. A current TER may not necessarily be an accurate indication of future TERs. The TER to 31 December 2018 is based on data for the period from 29 December 2017 to 31 December 2018 and the financial year-end TER is based on data for the financial year-end to 29 June 2018. Cost ratios are calculated using historical actual and/or estimated data and are provided solely as an indication/guide as to the annual expenses/costs that could be incurred. These ratios do not represent any current/actual charges or fees.

 Current asset allocation figures reflect the strategy classification of the collective investment schemes (or similar schemes) held by the Fund and do not look through to the underlying holdings of such schemes.

■ Market commentary

Following the despair of December, markets made one of their best ever starts to a new year, with virtually all asset classes and markets rising, some very sharply. The US led the way with a return of 8%, pulling the MSCI World index up by 7.8%. In this risk-on environment emerging markets outperformed developed markets, up 8.8%, with Latin America again relatively strong. While all markets were buoyant, the UK was the notable underperformer, held back by a strong pound. All market sectors rose, with technology stocks leading the way after their particularly sharp falls in Q4 last year. Even gold, which often tends to drift lower in bullish markets, continued its upward move, rallying 3% in the month.

While predictably not matching the surge in equities, bond markets participated in the rise. Global government bonds produced positive returns, even as higher risk assets rallied, as the US Fed surprised markets with a clear dovish shift and further moderation in economic data in Europe and China. Credit and emerging market bonds were particularly strong. The rally in credit was especially forceful in high yield, with US high yield returning 4.5%.

The catalyst for the surge in markets was a change in policy by the Federal Reserve, pointing to a more dovish approach. Then later in the month the Fed effectively removed its tightening bias by pointing to a patient approach, removing talk of further gradual rate increases in its policy path, noting muted inflation pressures and indicating that future policy decisions will depend on incoming data and market pricing of inflation expectations. At the same time, the other big headwind to markets, the US-China trade war, entered a critical negotiation period and early noises from both the US and China were encouraging. Economic news pointed to subdued inflation globally and a continuing slowdown of growth especially in Europe.

We believe that the sharp rally in markets in the early weeks of the year was more than justified after the big falls in Q4, when markets fell much more than the fundamentals had deteriorated. With central banks either maintaining an ultra-loose policy or, in the case of the Fed, easing back on tightening and adopting a more dovish stance, the policy backdrop remains supportive and although growth has slowed it remains positive and leading indicators generally point to further, albeit modest, growth ahead. This should continue to support markets. However, there are enough ongoing concerns to keep investors nervous and to trigger bouts of volatility. On balance we think that worst case outcomes will be avoided and we view the medium term outlook as broadly positive; we would therefore use any such periods of weakness to accumulate risk assets.

■ Risk warnings and important notes

Collective investments are generally medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go down as well as up and past performance is not necessarily a guide to the future.

Collective investments are traded at ruling prices. Commission and incentives may be paid and, if so, would be included in the overall costs. All performance is calculated on a total return basis, after deduction of all fees and commissions and in US dollar terms. Forward pricing is used.

The Fund invests in other collective investments, which levy their own charges. This could result in a higher fee structure for the Fund.

Fluctuations in the value of the underlying funds, the income from them and changes in interest rates mean that the value of the Fund and any income arising from it may fall, as well as rise, and is not guaranteed.

Deductions of charges and expenses mean that you may not get back the amount you invested.

The fees charged within the Fund and by the managers of the underlying funds are not guaranteed and may change in the future.

Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies, even in developed markets, investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt.

Notwithstanding ongoing monitoring of the underlying funds within the Fund, there can be no assurance that the performance of the funds will achieve their stated objectives.

The Fund will contain shares or units in underlying funds that invest internationally. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations.

Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information.

The Fund may contain shares or units in underlying funds that do not permit dealing every day. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments other than on the fund's dealing days.

No borrowing will be undertaken by the Fund except for the purpose of meeting short term liquidity requirements. Borrowings will not exceed 10% of the net asset value of the Fund. For such purpose, the securities of the Fund may be pledged. No scrip borrowing will be allowed. The Cell is not permitted to enter into any form of borrowing or loan arrangement with other cells of the Company nor other collective investment schemes of the Manager.

While derivative instruments may be used for hedging purposes, the risk remains that the relevant instrument may not necessarily fully correlate to the investments in the Fund and accordingly not fully reflect changes in the value of the investment, giving rise to potential net losses.

Forward contracts are neither traded on exchanges nor standardised. Principals dealing in these markets are also not required to make markets in the currencies they trade, with the result that these markets may experience periods of illiquidity. Banks and dealers will normally act as principals and usually each transaction is negotiated on an individual basis.

The Manager has the right to close the Fund to new investors, in order to manage it more efficiently, in accordance with its mandate.

Investment in the Fund may not be suitable for all investors. Investors should obtain advice from their financial adviser before proceeding with an investment.

Investors are reminded that any forecasts and/or commentary included in this MDD are not guaranteed to occur, and merely reflect the interpretation of the public information and propriety research available to the Investment Manager at a particular point in time.
